It is significant that in casting about for a successor to Tennyson, the ones most eligible for the place by reason of their poetic ability and achievement are not to be considered because of their democratic proclivities. It takes a royalist to write rhymes for the royal family.

William Dudley Foulke, republican, is sticking very sharp thorns into the reciprocity patch. He says the possibilities for money making by the wire pullers, by virtue of its manipulation, are not at all understood. To grant to the chief executive the power to tax and untax the nations that trade with us is too dangerous a prerogative and one no crowned head of a limited monarchy would dare assume.

Manitoba is struggling with a church-and-state school problem. It is decreed by law that the money accruing from the sale of public school lands shall be expended for the public schools only. A portion of the Catholics in the province insist upon a division between public and parochial schools. In appealing to the government, both sides are told, it is not for the government to interfere. The province must settle its own difficulty according to statute law. Thus does the imperial government of Canada hold sacred "states' rights."

Secretary Rusk says: "If England attempted to put a tariff on American wheat there would be a revolution in that country." Mr. Rusk gives the people of England credit for greater intelligence than he does his own countrymen. He believes that they know the tariff is a tax on the consumer. England would be quite justified in shutting American wheat entirely out of her markets, if she could buy her supplies somewhere else. She would be giving us tit for tat. And why shouldn't England protect her wheat farmers? The question is no more ridiculous than a hundred others that protection advocates ask.

Iowans are doing a bit of figuring for themselves. The mortgage indebtedness of the state, incurred in 1880, amounted to $28,905,000; in 1890, to $50,902,000—new mortgages filed. Total figures, also taken from the state auditor's report, show a total of farm and home mortgages from 1880 to 1890: $431,288,000. And the total assessed value of Iowa land and lots: $376,181,000, giving excess of mortgages over total assessed values: $55,107,000. When kid-gloved campaign orators tell these mortgaged farmers how protection to the iron and steel monopoly and to various other trusts enrich him, the farmer is liable to put on his thinking cap and wonder if he would better vote again for bounty to manufacturers in other states, out of his own lean purse.

The only tin question is: are the results of taxation on the canning industries and the consumer generally, showing adequate returns? The story of "the suppression of a valuable tin mine by democratic campaign managers," ready to burst forth the moment the political pressure is removed, hardly goes, even among the most ignorant and gullible. Fourteen plants, of those born of the tax boom, have shut up shop already, and the tin mines are forsaken of their swindled English owners. Do present prospects show that the enormous tax brings us adequate returns? Welsh laborers, coming over here to get work, do not greatly benefit us, when we have an oversurplus of laborers already. The question at issue is, does it pay?

The London Times says: "The present year will be a disastrous one for the British farmer. The chief loss will be in wheat, while there will be no adequate set off in any other crop. The outlook for the interior is gloomy for all classes, and it becomes a grave question how many farmers will be able to struggle through it." And we are so well protected against free trade England, she will buy her wheat in India if she can, in Canada so far as it is to be had, and in America if she must. The protection of 25 cents a bushel on wheat will help our farmers right out in a case like this! With the United States the natural food producing country for the world, a shut-off tax on foreign farm products will make millionaires of agriculturists in short order! It is to be hoped they see and appreciate this.

OUR WAGON WAYS.

Albert A. Pope is very much in earnest in his advocacy of an exhibit of road-making and road-making material, at the world's fair next year, as the surest advance movement towards the betterment of the wretched wagonways that are the rule in this country. In any presentation to prove that almost impassable roads are our greatest hindrance to material prosperity, the case cannot be made too strong. The first thing to call the attention of our foreign visitors next year, will be the luxurious vehicles of travel we possess and the mud and ruts we drag them through. We expend so much money for display and so little for a comfortable and substantial foundation for it. The advent of the "wheelmen" is a great factor in the movement for reform. With such roadways in our older and wealthier states as are built everywhere in Scotland, England, France and Germany, we would have a veritable paradise and what wear and tear of teams and vehicles would be saved, the drudgery and loneliness of farm life would all be changed, for enforced isolation is its chief cause. Social intercourse, regular attendance at school and church, a nearness of town and country that would benefit both, an outlook on country life that had within its limits hope, beauty and cheerfulness, all these benefits would follow the building of good roads.

It has been said that even the begging children in the byways of France have comparatively happy faces; their surroundings are so cleanly, bright and pleasant. To be sure our country is young and the countries of Europe are old. Some of the wagon roads in England and France were built by the Romans at the time of the invasion. But we rush ahead so rapidly in other improvements, that is small excuse why we should lag in this most essential one.

Mr. Pope's plan now is to interest the railroad companies and gain their influence for the projected exhibition. The wagonways are feeders for the iron highway, and every added facility for the movement of freight over the country is of direct benefit to them. The press of the country is certainly with Mr. Pope in his laudable effort, and hopes to see the directors of the fair give speedy attention and act promptly; there is no time to lose.

Byron Ritchie Forwards a Challenge

To the Republican Committee Asking for a Joint Debate With Candidate Ashley.

Byron Ritchie, the democratic nominee for congress in this district, has a proper conception of things. He is anxious to discuss the political issues of the campaign with his opponent, and if Mr. Ashley is half the great man he and his friends claim he is, here is an opportunity to show it.

The correspondence is as follows:

Toledo, O., Oct. 10, 1892.

Mr. James H. Southard, Chairman Republican Executive Committee, Lucas County, O.

Dear Sir: A letter, a copy of which is added hereto, was handed me this day. Will you at your earliest convenience, enter into arrangements with me to carry out this request?

Respectfully yours,
D. H. COMMAGER,
Ch'n Dem. Ex. Com., Lucas Co., O.

Toledo, Oct. 8, 1892.

Hon. D. H. Commager, Chairman Democratic Executive Committee, Lucas County, O.

Dear Sir: Will you kindly see if an arrangement can be made with the republican executive committe of this county, whereby Hon. J. M. Ashley, republican candidate for congress, and myself, may be allowed to meet once in each county in this district for a joint discussion of the issues now before the public.

Very Respectfully,
BYRON F. RITCHIE.

Political Notes.

Register on Thursday, democrats.

Democrats of the Fourth ward meet tonight.

A meeting of democrats was held in the First ward last night to make arrangements for registration.

An invitation is extended to all democrats in Lucas county to visit headquarters and make themselves at home.

Byron Ritchie has always worked in the ranks. He now has a right to ask the support of the entire party. He will have it.

Bob Nevin will address a republican mass meeting at Memorial hall to-morrow night, taking the place of Ben Butterworth.

Chairman Commager and Secretary Murphy are arranging the details of the campaign, and should have the cordial support of every democratic worker in the county.

Mr. Jacob Kohn, the democratic nominee for recorder, is making a winning canvass. Personally popular, he is adding friends to his list daily. He would make a splendid official.

The democrats of the city are pleased with their candidate for congress. If the republican committee can induce Jim Ashley to debate with Mr. Ritchie, they will have more reason for pleasure.

M. E. Donahue, ward committeeman, has issued the following call: "The democrats of the Sixth ward are requested to meet at Weber's hall in the room occupied by the band, on Thursday evening, for the purpose of organizing a ward club. Other matters of importance will come before you."

How Sham Free Trade Works.

"Reciprocity" is a grand thing. But it doesn't always work reciprocally—particularly the McKinley brand. For example: We have bought from the countries with which we have entered into reciprocal tariff arrangements $63,000,000 more goods in 1891-92 than we did the year before; but they have only bought of us $8,224,903 in excess of their purchases for 1890-91. Brazil sold us $56,836,000 more goods under reciprocal arrangement, and we sold her about $2,000,000 in return. This is all well enough; but the handle of the jug seems to be turned away from us.—Philadelphia Record.

SWAIN CONCLUDES.

Walker, Swain. The object of the meeting was to talk over the organization of the council and the election of a president. Daly was there.

The next meeting was held at the office of the mayor. The meeting, however, had nothing to do with the combine.

The next meeting was held at Neuendorf's store. At this meeting, witness said he did not know as he wanted to be a party to any such a combination, but consented to attend another meeting. He did not know what further was said by himself.

He stood up in the circle and took the pledge never to divulge the secrets of the combination.

"Do you know of anyone who did divulge the secrets of that or any other meeting?"

"I have divulged some of the secrets during this trial."

"Did you divulge any of the secrets before you went on the stand?"

"I did."

"Who to?"

"Mr. George Lorenz."

"When was that?"

"At the time when I visited his office, on June 20, but I am not positive."

"Did you divulge the secrets to any one else?"

"I did after that."

"When was that?"

"I can remember an incident that will refresh. It was the date of the Press club excursion."

"Who to?"

"Mr. Barber."

"What did he say?"

"When I went to him he said he was surprised that I would be implicated in any such business."

"What did you say?"

"I stated the reason why I came to him."

"What was that reason?"

Mr. Barber objected, which was overruled.

"My reason for going to him was that the members had violated the obligation with me, consequently I did not feel under any obligation to them."

"Was there any immunity or promises that you would not be prosecuted?"

"None whatever."

"Do you expect to be prosecuted?"

"I do not understand that I will be prosecuted, but there never has been a word said by Mr. Barber or any one else."

"In consequence of your evidence given here, don't you expect the case against you will end here?"

"I do not expect to be called into court and go through a suit on this matter, judging from what I know of the usages of courts."

The next meeting he said was held at Tanner's office. He did not think Daly was there. He did not remember anything he said. He joined in the discussion.

The next meeting was at Neuendorf's store. He did not recall anything he said, but could remember what others said.

The next meeting was at Tanner's store. He thought Daly was there

"Will you swear that he was?"

"I will, but might be mistaken."

"What did you say?"

"I said I did not think the Pluto Oil company should pay the price as fixed; that I wanted to oppose the Warren-Scharf contract, as it was not policy."

"What did you do at that meeting?"

"Nothing that I remember."

"Where was the next meeting held?"

"At Neuendorf's store. This was the fifth meeting."

"What did you say at that meeting?"

"I stated that I wanted it understood that if any complication arose that would endanger our families or ourselves by continuing to vote in one way, we should be allowed to vote as we please. I also stated that I would no longer oppose the Warren-Scharf Monroe street contract. We also agreed to vote to save ourselves on all questions, money or no money."

The next meeting the witness stated was held at Fisher's club house.

"What did you say?"

"I said that I did not think the Pluto Oil company should be taxed one dollar, as it was a home concern and should not be opposed. I also said that I would vote as I saw fit on the street railway ordinance."

Next meeting was at Mr. Neuendorf's store.

"What did you say at that meeting?"

"I stated that I had made up my mind to have nothing more to do with the combination in any way, shape or manner, and stated my reasons why. I also stated that I should vote when the time came as I thought best and proper."

"Now, going back to the meeting at Mr. Tanner's office, will you swear positive that Mr. Daly was there?"

"I would not swear positively, but to the best of my memory, Mr. Daly was there."

John Felker, councilman from the Seventh ward, elected last spring, who was present at one or two meetings, was next called by the state.

"I will ask you if you were present at any of the meetings of members of the council at Tanner's office during May?" said Mr. Barber.

"I was."

"Who was there?"

"Neuendorf, Schmuhl, Taylor, Gill, Doner, Tanner, Swain, Faskins and myself."

"At whose invitation did you go?"

"Mr. Swain's."

He did not remember the date, but went there with Swain. No one called the meeting to order. He did not know it was a meeting for any one to preside. It lasted about five minutes. Something was said about another meeting.

"What was said at that meeting?"

"Mr. Doner said, 'Do you know the object of this meeting?' I said I did not. He said it was to organize a combination for the mutual protection of the members; that if any of them wanted any legislation put through or defeated, it would be done; also that if any corporation wanted any favors they could be granted for a small consideration. They wanted to know what I thought about the plan and I said I would let them know later. I attended another meeting later on, about six weeks after, at the club house, on Mr. Swain's invitation."

Judge Ritchie objected, which was overruled.

"I heard said that the object of the meeting was the street car ordinance. They told me that if Robison wanted the ordinance passed he would have to pay $1,000 for each vote. Mr. Tanner made the statement."

"What was said about Pluto Oil company at that meeting?"

"They wanted to know how I was going to vote and I said in favor of it for the reason that they were friends of mine."

The defense made no cross-examination.

The state then called City Clerk Lamb. This testimony was introduced to show the vote on the ordinances in question. He testified to the members of the city council.

"I will call your attention to an ordinance entitled the Pluto ordinance to permit this company to lay a pipe line through the city. When was it introduced?"

"The first ordinance was introduced in the council May 23, 1892, by Mr. Swain. It was referred to the committee on streets. That ordinance was withdrawn and another introduced. I suppose it was introduced in the committee prior to May 30, though I had no record of the committee meeting. I placed it on the schedule for the alderman May 28, 1892. It was passed by that board. It was taken to the council for June 6, 1892."

"What does the record show was done with that ordinance on that evening?"

"All members were present but Messrs. Miller and Warner, who came in after roll call."

"The Pluto ordinance was read the first time. Mr. Manchester moved to lay on the table, and the ballot stood 9 to 9. The negative vote was: Felker, Hake, Lee, Miller, Morris, Rutherford, Schmidt, Walker, Coleman."

"Mr. Lamb did not have a record of the affirmative vote, stating that he only kept one side of the ballot.

A recess of five minutes was taken, during which Mr. Lamb produced the necessary record.

Mr. Lamb began to testify from the minutes that he kept of that meeting. The defense objected, on the ground that this testimony was a matter of record, and as long as that existed no seconding record could be introduced.

The state argued that the records showed the vote 9 and 9, and gave the names of members voting nay, and that the other could be proven.

The court held that the law required a record to be kept of all proceedings of the council. The point was whether this was the proceedings of the council. If the law requires a record it must appear, and it cannot be proven any other way; that if the record is silent the court could not see how the point was to be proven.

The objection, however, was overruled.

The court stated that while the objection was overruled care should be taken as to the use of memoranda. This could be used only to refresh the witness' memory.

The question then arose was whether the minutes taken by Mr. Lamb was memoranda to refresh his memory. This was argued to some extent. Judge Ritchie insisted on his objection to the introduction of the memoranda. After more argument recess was taken until 2 o'clock.

Prosecutor Tracy introduced the afternoon session by citing authorities on the pending question. The court in conclusion held that the witness could answer the question and the objection was overruled.

Mr. Lamb then gave the names of the members voting to lay the Pluto pipe line ordinance upon the table: Daly, Doner, Gill, Manchester, Neuendorf, Schmuhl, Swain, Tanner and Taylor.

Judge Ritchie made a motion to have this stricken out, which was overruled.

Mr. Lamb also testified that the next question was a vote on the suspension of the rules for another reading, nays 8 and yeas 10.

Mr. Ritchie objected to the witness using the memorandum and the prosecution read from the record.

Mr. Lamb then turned to the next meeting of the council, held June 20.

He said the record did not show the names of the members voting to lay the motion on the table.

"Who did vote in the affirmative to lay the ordinance on the table?"

"Mr. Doner moved that the ordinance be laid on the table—yeas 10, nays 5."

"Give the names of the councilmen voting to lay the ordinance on the table."

Mr. Ritchie noted an objection to be consistent with what had been done before.

"We are not troubled with consistency if we think we are right," said the court.

The witness then read the vote as follows: Daly, Doner, Gill, Manchester, Neuendorf, Rutherford, Schmuhl, Swain, Tanner Taylor.

POLITICAL MACHINE.

Michigan Postoffices in a Shameful Condition.

Used to Make Votes for the Republican Office Holders.

Detroit, Oct. 11.—Daniel J. Campau, chairman of the democratic state central committee of Michigan, has formally made complaint to Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, chairman of the civil service commission, against the conduct of the republican postmasters of Michigan.

These officeholders are now making, at the request of the republican state central committee, a list of all the voters, patrons of their office, with notations as to their politics, connection with farmers' movements and labor societies, and to enlist the prominent republicans of their towns in the work.

The chairman further charges that the postmaster at Pontiac receives large numbers of newspapers containing a campaign broadside that is in no sense newspaper matter, in violation of the postal laws.

He further charges that democratic campaign literature, properly addressed and stamped, is thrown into the waste basket by the republican postmaster at Shaftsburg.

Mr. Roosevelt has replied that the charges will bet an immediate investigation.

THE FREEMAN ROBBERY.

Some of the Circumstances Are Peculiar.

It Looks As If the Burglar Fixed Up a Few Decoy Clues to Mislead.

No clue has yet been obtained as to the identity of the Freeman burglars. Mr. Freeman said this morning that he had given his goods up as lost. He never expected to recover them. There are some peculiar circumstances connected with the robbery which may develop into something. It looks rather queer to those up in such matters that the burglars should bring pipes and tobacco on such an expedition, and then get them out and take a quiet smoke while they were engaged in the hazardous occupation of burglarizing. Out and out burglars of the old school don't work that way. They smoke and carry pipes on off hours.

Then too the tampering done at the rear of the store has the appearance on close examination of having been done from the inside. It looks a good deal as if the burglar fixed up a little ruse to fool the investigators. Some one man who did not smoke might have placed two pipes on the floor to lead people to believe that there were two men on the job who both used tobacco. He probably got in the front way and made things look as if he broke in at the rear. Burglaries are queer things and appearances are misleading. They are sometimes manufactured clues to mislead.

HID IN THE LIBRARY.

Mindreader Seymore Makes a Test in Toledo.

Six Newspaper Men on the Committee—Seymore Drives Blindfolded Through the Streets and Finds Mr. Porter's Badge.

Andrew J. Seymore, the mind reader, performed a test in Toledo this morning that equals any of the feats of the late Bishop. Mr. Seymore proposed to be blindfolded and then find any article hid by a committee in any part of the city. A committee was appointed consisting of six newspaper men, three of whom, W. H. Porter, Tracy Barnes and Fred Cary, did the hiding. The three started out at about 10 o'clock this morning and proceeded to the city library building where they placed a gold badge belonging to Mr. Porter, between the sheets of a large blotter and placed it on a writing table in the public room. The committee then returned to the Wonderland, where they met Mr. Seymore. He was blindfolded and then on being grasped by the wrist by one of the committe he spelled out "B-A-D-G-E" on an alphabetical board. Continuing he spelled out "Madison and Ontario." Mr. Seymore, still blindfolded, stepped into the street, mounted the box of a carriage that was in waiting containing six newspaper men, and drove rapidly down Summit street toward Jefferson. The street was crowded with vehicles, people and cars, but the blindfolded driver never touched any of them, although he had several close shaves that made the scribes on the inside jump from their seats. At Jefferson street he turned the horses almost on to the sidewalk, then pulled them quickly about, and dashed back over Summit, just grazing a farmer's wagon and turning neatly around an express wagon. Down Madison the carriage sped to Ontario, where Seymore pulled up. Everybody alighted and Seymore touching the neck of one of the committee, proceeded towards the library building. He made his way up the steps, entered and went directly to the desk, picked up the blotter and fished out the badge. Then for the first time during the proceedings described, the handkerchief was removed from his eyes.

The test was quite wonderful. Mr. Seymore says that sometimes he succumbs to the mental strain, going into a comatose condition. It will be remembered that the famous Bishop performed a similar test in New York and apparently died from the effects. The doctors were so anxious to examine the brain of the peculiarly constructed being that it is held by Bishop's relatives, they cut him open when he was not really dead. Be that as it may, Mr. Seymore, to head off any ambitious physician, wrote the following warning and placed it in the hands of the committee before starting:

"Should I fall in catalepsy of a comatose condition, I warn all physicians not to hold post mortem, embalm me or place me on ice without full consent of Ben Davis, manager Wonderland, Toledo, O."

Crowds of people followed the carriage in its wanderings and pedestrians paused in astonishment at the queer spectacle.

NO DECISION.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The court of appeals did not hand down the decision on the apportionment cases this morning as was expected.

Let Burglars Beware.

There was an interesting private seance at the police station last evening.

The police department is much worried over the frequent burglaries that are now being perpetrated throughout the city and means and ways must be devised, Mr. Doville says, for "stopping the —— nuisance."

Chief Raitz believes if the detective force was more of a unit—had less head and more tail—the burlar business would not pay.

Chief Spore has an idea, but inasmuch as it is the only one around the building he proposes keeping it to himself.

Commissioner Doville, who, in the absence of the mayor, runs things at the station, sometimes thinks he thinks, and there are times when he is lavish in the distribution of the said thinks.

He is somewhat of a spiritualist, and his latest "think" is to secure an adjunct to the department in the person of M'lle. ——, a well known mesmerist.

She could readily operate on Detective Hall, Mr. Doville says, and Hall, while under her influence, could follow in spirit, the fellows who are now burglarizing Summit street stores.

Chief Raitz believed Mr. Spore would make the better subject, as the weaker the mind the easier is it for the mesmerist to secure control of the subject's mind.

Mr. Doville stands by Hall, however, though he says if the mayor was here he would be his first choice, everything considered.

The scheme is a great one, though Charlie Stager suggests that one old woman is more than a plenty around the police headquarters at one time.

It will be a new departure in the detection of criminals, and the result of Mr. Doville's luminous idea will be watched with interest.

In the meantime let the burglar beware.
